UVP LLC Wins Another Significant Tender for its For Advanced Imaging Systems in China

March 2008

Upland, CA ...

UVP, LLC recently shipped another batch of 20 of its Advanced Imaging Systems to the Chinese Center for Disease Control (CDC) in China. This is in addition to the landmark shipment of 34 BioSpectrum Imaging Systems last year. Techcomp, Ltd., a major supplier of scientific instruments in China and a UVP dealer, successfully represented UVP again in this important transaction over other competing brands.

“This sale is meaningful not only for the impressive quantity of the order but for what it stands for; we are humbled to contribute to the great efforts of organizations like the CDC in their quest for research and finding solutions to current health issues. We commend Techcomp once more for its world class representation of UVP in China”, says Myrna Espiritu, UVP’s International Sales Manager.

“We are grateful to the Chinese CDC for their continued trust in our Advanced Imaging Systems to handle their critical experiments. We are also grateful to Techcomp, who continues to strengthen our base in China’s research community through their highly technical and highly professional management & staff,” says Alex Waluszko, UVP Vice President for Sales & Marketing.
